HONGKONG, AUGUST 27th, 1904.

As a Bill for the relief of the Women and Girls' Protection Ordinance will shortly be introduced in the Legislative Council of this Colony it may be profitable to note the opinion expressed by the Chinese Advisory Board and the Refuge Committee at Singapore on the same question as applied to the Straits Settlements. The members of these bodies requested their President, Mr. Wray, the Protector of Chinese, to call a special meeting for the purpose of considering the new Bill, and a summary of the proceedings is given by the Free Press in the form of a leading article. Mr. THOMAS CURRY, the mover in the matter, and his second, Mr. GAN EWE SEEN, both addressed the meeting at some length, and the former graphically and forcibly described the condition of affairs which formerly obtained in Singapore, and which ultimately led the Government to pass the Ordinance. Between 1859 and 1880 a considerable number of women came to the Colony as prostitutes, and their brothels were formerly carried on in the most nefarious manner, and engaged in it publicly and openly. Side by side with these establishments there sprang up a number of brothel-keeping societies, who were supported entirely by the earnings of the unfortunate women, who fell an easy prey to their wiles. With the establishment of the Protectorate there was a marked decrease in the evils complained of, and by means of the system of registration and inspection of brothels, which was introduced it became possible to trace women who had been kidnapped, to interfere for their protection, and thus mitigate the hardship of their life. Other speakers followed in much the same strain, and all were agreed that the repeal of this part of the Ordinance would lead directly to the revival of the numerous cruelties and tortures which were formerly practised upon women and girls to compel them to obey the orders of their inhuman keepers, and would also encourage the existence of Secret Societies and other parasites to whom the earnings of these unfortunate women afford a too tempting means of existence. In the same paper in which this report is given we find also the report of the trial at the Assize of a Chinese prostitute, charged with attempting to commit suicide. The unfortunate creature had taken opium, but not a fatal dose, and on being removed to the hospital she speedily recovered. Her defence was that she had no intention of committing suicide but only took a little opium with the intention of brightening her mistress and outbidding the opportunity of visiting the Protector of Chinese. Two story she told since the eighth moon of last year, and that at first she was well treated in the second moon of this year she became diseased, and informed the keeper who and she was prejudiced, abused her, slapped her, and compelled her to go on receiving him under the threat that if she did not she would take her to Johore or elsewhere and sell her. The remainder of her life we may give in her own words: "I got frightened and took some. Some time ago a man had found I was diseased and he refused to pay me; the keeper then took me. I asked to see the Protector, but was not allowed to go out; the keeper and the servant stopped me. The night before I took opium a Boston visited me. I went for some opium after a while, and he slept with me, he got up and went away in the morning. He did not pay me. I was afraid I would be beaten, and as I wanted to get out of this, I took opium and pretended to be sick. I did so. I was perfectly conscious when the servant called me. I knew I was taken to the hospital; then I got well again, and was then charged before the magistrate, when I made a statement. I had to take me when I was in a diseased state, otherwise I was ill-treated and beaten. I was afraid of the keeper. I am not well yet, the disease is just leaving me. I have been in this state since the second moon, and always had to take me. I do not want to go back to the brothel. I had no intention of taking my life; I wanted to frighten the keeper so as to be able to get to see the Protector, who I knew would help me if I heard my complaint. I have been in all twenty-five days in jail. This tale may or may not have been colored, but we know that the inmates of Chinese brothels are held in a state of servitude and that no class stands in greater need of protection by the Government. The machinery by which this protection has hitherto been afforded is now about to be swept away, and orders to that effect having been received from home. And it is not only women who have already lost their chastity that will be deprived of the advantages that attend the system of registration that is at present in force, but the operations of kidnappers will be facilitated and innocent women and children will suffer in consequence.
